

the key to

attraction and retention

Car Report Latin America

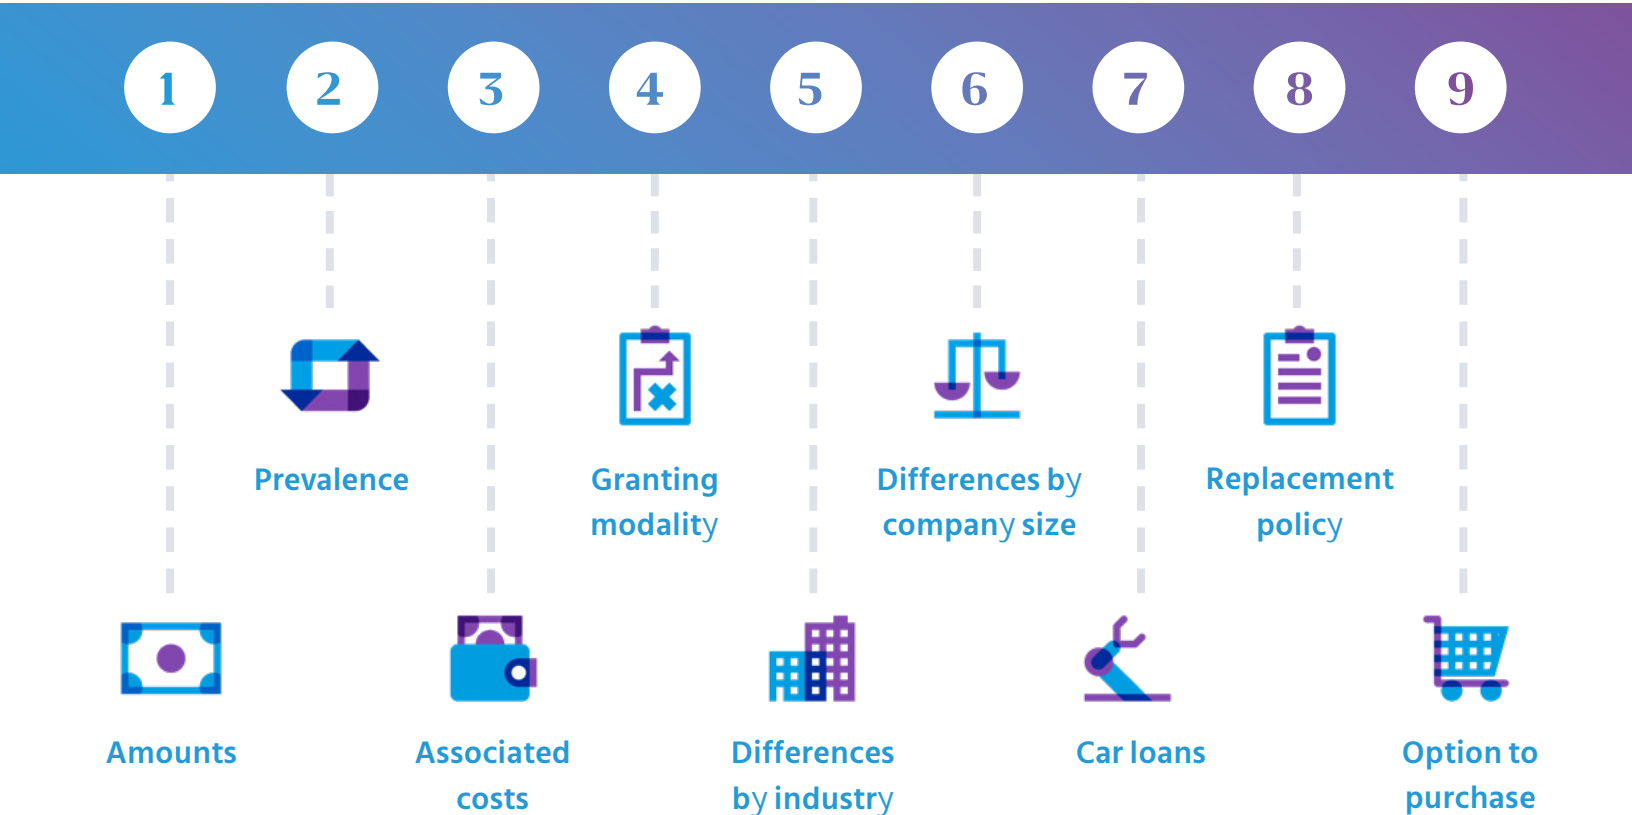

Nowadays, a company's compensation objectives are concerned not only with projecting reserves for salary increases, but also with maintaining and improving the employee benefits package.

As a component of the overall compensation package, a car benefit may be a factor in attracting and retaining executives, and represents a competitive tool for HR professionals.

Mercer's Car Report is a valuable reference guide that will help you define new strategies and manage your car benefit policy.

With our Car Report, you will be able to define new strategies and manage your policy. The report covers details such as:
